Q: Why did you choose to be a Funeral Director?

A: This is a question most funeral directors get asked every time someone asks, "What do you do for a living?" or after the arrangements at the funeral home have been completed. Every funeral director's answer may vary slightly but the underlying reason is that we have a passion to help people. Most of us have gone through losses ourselves and we understand the importance of having someone outside your circle of family and friends to lean on and help guide you. At the end of a hard, long day, there is nothing more rewarding than knowing that you really helped a family to the best of your ability. I think that this profession, this life and this gift of being a funeral director "chose" me and it couldn't have been a bigger blessing!
